Worth noting

The cheapest companies often scoop debris out and leave it in your yard. We bag it and haul it away. We also flush every downspout and send you before-and-after photos so you can see exactly what we did.

5 Things To Check First

1. Ask if they flush the downspouts.

Cleaning the gutters but leaving clogged downspouts is like unclogging a sink but leaving the drain blocked. Water still backs up. Make sure they flush every downspout, not just scoop the troughs.

2. Ask where the debris goes.

Some crews scoop everything out and drop it on your lawn, roof, or landscaping. Then they leave. Ask if they bag it and haul it away.

3. Ask about gutter guards.

If you have gutter guards, most companies charge extra to remove and reinstall them. Some will not touch them at all. Ask before you book.

4. Check their Google reviews.

Look for people who mention showing up on time, being careful on ladders, and leaving the property clean. Gutter cleaning is simple work. The difference is in the details.

5. Ask for before-and-after photos.

You probably will not climb a ladder to check their work. A good company sends you photos so you can see what was in there and what it looks like now.

Quick tip

In Wilmington, gutters should be cleaned at least twice a year. Once in late fall after the leaves drop, and once in spring. Pine needles are the worst. They pack down and hold water like a sponge.
